

ESTATE PLANNING SERVICES INCLUDE:

Wills: A will is a document stating your intention for how you want your property to be distributed to your heirs.

Trusts: Trusts can take the place of or supplement a will. A trust manages the allocation of property by giving its benefits to many individuals and can be used while an individual is still living. Trusts become more useful for high-value estates and tax avoidance.

Health care directives: Also known as living wills, these documents express how you would like to be treated in different medical situations.

Power of attorney: Granting a power of attorney to an individual allows them to act on your behalf in various business and legal matters.

Information is for educational purposes only and is not intended as legal advice. Please contact our office to speak with one of our attorneys regarding your issues.